

How to Budget For a New Kitchen Refit

Embarking on a kitchen refit project is an exciting journey that requires careful planning and budgeting.

To ensure your new kitchen meets your dreams without stretching your finances too thin, here are some vital elements to consider and a simple table for you to fill in your estimates.

Understanding Your Needs

Before diving into numbers, think about what you want from your new kitchen. Consider aspects like the layout, functionality, and aesthetics.

Whether you cook frequently, entertain often, or need a multi-functional space, understanding your needs will guide your budgeting.

Elements to Consider

1. Walls and Labour: Changing or moving walls and the associated labour costs.
2. Appliances: Quality and type of appliances you envision.
3. Cabinetry/Furniture/Storage: The heart of kitchen design, affecting both function and style.
4. Lighting: Adequate lighting is crucial for both ambiance and practicality.
5. Flooring: Durable and easy to clean options are best.
6. Surfaces: Worktops play a significant role in the kitchen's look and usability.
7. Sink & Taps: Functional yet stylish choices are available.
8. Additional Elements: Consider cutlery, pots, pans, and other kitchenware.

The Kitchen Budgeting Checklist

Purchasing/Products	Estimated Cost (%)	Your Budget (£)
Building Materials
Cabinetry/Furniture
Work Surfaces
Cabinet Handles
Lighting
Kitchen Appliances
Sink &amp; Taps
Flooring
Tiles &amp; Tiling
Additional Elements
Totals

Use this table to allocate your budget across different elements. Start with estimates based on typical percentages (e.g., appliances might take up 20% of your budget) and adjust according to your priorities and needs.

Final Thoughts

Budgeting for a kitchen refit doesn't have to be daunting. By breaking down the project into manageable elements and carefully considering your needs and desires, you can create a budget that ensures your new kitchen is both beautiful and functional.

Remember, thorough planning at the start can save you time and money in the long run.

Call the Better Kitchens team today on 01934 813201 to discuss your project.

www.betterkitchens.co.uk - The UK's Most Affordable Quality Kitchens